Otherwise, what's the point of being in a relationship? A woman has been left furious after her boyfriend and his father decided that she can't have two dogs at her house. Kimberly Giles, a single mother of one, lives with her mother and stepfather, on a sleepy cul-de-sac in Manchester. She and her son live with her mother, stepfather, grandmother and new stepbrother. The problem for her was that she couldn't have two dogs. After moving from her family home, Kimberley and her partner, Peter Smith, bought a house in Bury and decided that he would keep his dog, Maverick, and she would have another dog. But they soon found out they weren't compatible, so they decided Kimberley could have Maverick – even though there was an enormous problem. Kimberley, 35, has been struggling to give birth to her first child, due on Valentine's Day. And because she was having a tough time, she decided to name the dog after her boyfriend. She said: "We split up because I couldn't have two dogs, one of each sex. He asked me to choose and I thought, 'At least it will give me something to focus on.' "He had gone to a farm to see a bull, got back and his dad was like, 'We'll see you at 4 o'clock'. "He said that was fine, he'd had enough of going to his grandparents' and he wouldn't be back before 4pm. "Then he said, 'Oh no – but don't get the dog.' I thought, 'OK, I'll
